K. O. F. C. HOLD NINTH ANNUAL CONCERT AND BALL

Big Social Event of Year at Forester's Hall Last Evening

SIXTY COUPLE IN GRAND MARCH

Excellent Music, Pretty Decorations and a Happy Crowd Combine to Make a Joyous Event.

Bennington's big social event of the year, the annual Easter Monday ball of Bennington council, Knights of Columbus, was held last evening at Forester's hall. It was the ninth event of its kind and like its predecessors was a success in every way.

In previous years the concert and ball has been held at the hall of St. Francis de Sales academy where the largest dance floor in town has been available. Because of the ruling by Bishop Joseph J. Rice of the Vermont diocese prohibiting dancing upon all church property, academy hall was not available this year and the council was compelled to seek other and smaller quarters for the entertainment.

Although handicapped by the low ceiling the members of the council, who have acquired considerable experience in that direction during the past nine years carried out an exceedingly pretty scheme of decoration. Festoons of purple and white crepe paper, the colors of the order, paralleled with numerous colored tulpin in cascades formed the basis of the arrangement which was broken by a number of porcelain domes and a large center light. American flags were used on the walls and the big monogram "K. O. C." outlined in incandescents was a conspicuous feature. A low hedge of evergreen enclosed the orchestra.

Preceding the grand march, which was led by Grand Knight J. P. Pendergast and Mrs. Pendergast and directed by Joseph A. Evans, Hurley's orchestra of seven pieces gave a concert with the following program:

Overture, "Orpheus"
(a) Un Plu d'Amour
(b) Serenade
Selection, Firefly
Framl

The rendition of the concert program was especially pleasing and the music for the long dance program that followed was a big factor in making the ball the success that it was. The time was excellent and the selections, both for the round and the square dances, were given with the life and energy that mean so much in dance music.

Sixty couples took part in the grand march, a somewhat smaller number than has composed the line in previous years, but when all the dances, including those who arrived after the march, were upon the floor there was none too much room for comfort.

Refreshments consisting of chicken salad, rolls, olives, pickles, sandwiches, neopolitan ice cream and cake were served in the rooms of the Eagles on the second floor of the building. Fruit punch was served during the dances.

The grand march was composed of the following couples: D. A. Gulliton and Miss Rose Morrissey, William Gibney and Miss Mary Gibney, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Ward, F. D. Cullinan and Miss Buck of Arlington, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Healy, P. P. Nolan and Miss Gertrude Nolan, William P. McCarthy and Mrs. P. WON'T FIGHT AGAIN

Johnson Says He Was Fairly Licked and Retires

Havana, April 5.—"It was a clean knockout and the best man won. It was not a matter of luck. I have no kick coming."

Such were the words of ex-champion Jack Johnson when he had recovered from Jess Willard's terrific left jab to the heart and right wing to the jaw in the twenty-sixth round of the championship fight that restored pugilistic supremacy to the white race and made Willard champion this afternoon at Oriental Park.

Johnson realized in the twenty-second round that his hold on the championship was growing short and asked for Jack Curley. The latter was at the gate at the time, but appeared shortly before the last round. "Tell my wife I'm tiring, and I wish you'd see her out," said Jack. Curley understood and carried out Johnson's wish.

As the fight wore on and Willard had received all the blows in Johnson's collection and had found his capacity to do damage grow less, he became more and more aggressive, while despair began to dawn on the countenance of the champion. Willard's blows were not so numerous and Johnson clearly outpointed him, except toward the last but those early blows that the Kansas giant did land would have spelled a knockout for almost any one but Johnson.

When the fight ended there was no doubt as to which was the better man. Willard had fought his own fight and overcome the older master by the sheer force of youth; the thirties had to retire in favor of the twenties.

The scene of the fight was the Havana race track, ten miles from the city. Thousands made their way to the track hours before the time set for the opening of the encounter. The bets to the amount of $80,000 had been sold in advance but the $3 seats were sold at the turnstiles at the four gates. Sunrise found men waiting in line. Some of them had been there all night.

Ringside box seats sold for $25, slope seats cost $20, while $15 was paid for grandstand seats. From $15 the price of other seats fell to $3 for general admission, but in addition to the fight prices, all spectators were required to pay $1 for the privilege of witnessing the racing at the conclusion of the fight.

After the fight Johnson went into hiding, leaving by automobile for some point near Havana. As he left the grounds he said that he would never fight again.

GERMANS WANTED BEER

Fifty Thousand Bottles Ordered For Ellet Freidrich.

Washington, April 2.—If the German raider Prinz Ellet Freidrich makes a chance with the British cruise ship, the Virginia, Cape instead of internment for the war she will go out with 50,000 bottles of beer, or 100 bottles for each of the 500 men aboard. Under the rules that govern ships in time of war a belligerent vessel touching at a neutral port may take on supplies sufficient to carry her to her nearest home port.

A naval board appointed by Secretary Daniels to determine the quantity of coal and other supplies needed by the Prinz Ellet in case she went to sea cut down every item on the requisition made by Captain Thierichens except one. This exception was the quantity of beer that the German commander thought he would like to take aboard. The members of the naval board gasped when they discovered that Captain Thierichens wanted 50,000 bottles, but they approved the item just the same.

SENTENCED AS GERMAN SPY.
